

Cultural Research Conference for Postgraduates and ECR's

The Next Generation of Cultural Research: Building New Cultural Intelligence for 21st Century Problems

20-21 September 2010
University of Western Sydney, Parramatta

Dear All,

Please note that the online registration for the Next Generation of Cultural Research Conference is now open.

The two day conference will see a dynamic group of postgraduate and early career researchers from across Australia and New Zealand gather to present their research. The presentations will cover broad-ranging topics but all share a common theme: exploring what it means when we call ourselves cultural researchers, and looking at how people from different academic backgrounds see the nature and challenges of conducting cultural research in the 21st century. In a world that is increasingly globalised, diverse and technologically mediated, it is suggested that new knowledge practices are required to address the cultural challenges and contradictions that exist in the 21st century. In particular, focus for this conference will be on generating genuine solutions to social and cultural problems through forging accessible, transparent and practicable forms of cultural understanding.

For more information and/or to register your attendance, please click on the button below:

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact Conference convenor, Shanna Robinson on s.robinson@uws.edu.au

This Conference is proudly sponsored by the Cultural Studies Association of Australia (CSAA), Centre for Cultural Research (CCR), University of Western Sydney, Cultural Research Network (CRN) and ARC Centre of Excellence for Creative Innovation and Industries (CCI).

