PUBLIC LECTURE

PROFESSOR MARC AUGÉ

“ARCHITECTURE AND NON-PLACES”

Using one of his most famous concepts, namely the idea of the “non-place”, in this lecture Professor Augé will examine concepts such as globalisation, urbanisation, city-world and world-city and suggest, provocatively, that the very idea of world architecture alludes to a global society that does not exist and that we may then be condemned to find beauty in non-places.

Professor Marc Augé is one of France’s leading intellectuals and the author of dozens of books. His work has revolutionized his primary discipline of anthropology and serves as a key point of reference for work inside and outside of this field. Augé has spent much of his career at the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales where he served as President and taught many leading seminars.
