

CALL FOR PAPERS CONTEMPORARY EMOTIONS RESEARCH NETWORK (CERN)

RESEARCHING AND MEASURING EMOTIONS AND AFFECT IN CONTEMPORARY SOCIETY

CALL FOR PAPERS

This is a call for papers for CERN's inaugural workshop, to be held in Sydney at UOW's CBD Campus on Friday 25 September 2015.

This workshop seeks to bring together researchers working in the area of emotions in contemporary society from a variety of disciplines, including sociology, philosophy, politics, law, history, creative arts and media. The focus of the workshop is to meet researchers and present a selection of studies on emotions from across these fields.

We are interested in receiving and showcasing papers on (but not limited to) the following topics:

- Emotions and the public sphere;
- The expression and function of emotions such as shame, anxiety, and anger in contemporary society;
- The relationship between emotions and embodiment;
- Methodologies for researching emotions in contemporary society.

Please submit 200 word abstracts to Sarah Sorial or Roger Patulny by Friday 21 August 2015.

ABOUT CERN:

This network is supported by the Faculty of Law Humanities and Arts at the University of Wollongong, Australia. The purpose of this network is to build the research capacity of academics in, and promote research on, emotions in contemporary social contexts. CERN will extend the focus of research beyond traditional psychological and classical-historical concerns with emotions. It will examine and interlink emotions research from a range of contemporary fields, including sociology, philosophy, politics, law, cultural studies, modern history, and creative arts and media. For more information about CERN, visit <https://www.uowblogs.com/cern/>